I used to be able to remote desktop into my XP machine, now I can't. It seems SP2 has screwed something up. I'm assuming that if you aren't running the firewall services, then all incoming ports are disabled by default? The firewall service won't start and I've followed several posts that I googled. None of those seemed to work. From resetting winsock to deleting a reg entry and letting it reset.

Any suggestions to getting RD running again? Or, if it is the firewall, getting that running again? When I try to manually start it, it complains about a DB error.

Please advise.
