Hi Guys,

Currently have XP, installed

Just got office 2007 installed, and liking it alot. One of the features i have noticed is the Desktop search facility (download file from MS to allow it to work).

I think this could be a good thing, but i am worried about the privacy aspect.

We have all looked at sites, am sure, and then deleted them (you know what am talking about), and what about files and folder you have deleted.

Would index's to these items still be available, well after they are removed or deleted from your computer

The same issues for Microsoft's stab at the same thing.
