I've looked at all of the tech sites and find nothing on this. Also, I ran MS' Windows Defender and then Webroot's Spy Sweeper and neither of them found anything.

Anyone else have any ideas on this?

Howard

i had the same problem 16 months ago i had a trojen-put a new hard drive in -6 months ago i reolized that this folder of the same picture 100s of the same one kept reinventing itself every few months. I looked through microsoft for tech testing new programs- i found one that searches deep into your hard drive-used it & now its gone,sorry i cant remember the name of it.A friend told me this pic was probably in my ram.i did delete this program after use so i wouldnt use it at ever hickup . this is just a suggestion.

Hi. I think my system may be haunted. In addition to having to run the "TaskPanelFix" applet fairly often to get the properties back to where they are supposed to be, I also find that my folder pictures are getting changed. In some cases, a new image file (its always the same file) appears in a folder and it becomes the one displayed. I can delete it and re-establish the default or another picture but at some indeterminate point in the future it will magically reappear.

Re: Folder pictures changing...

Any idea what's causing this and what I can do to stop it from happening?

Thanks in advance,

Howard
