I need to restrict permissions to any usb drive that is placed into a computer on a per user basis. I don't have a server, so I can't use the Group Policy for this. I also don't want to use the registry editor every time that I need to use my drive. I just don't want an employee taking home company documents. Also, I have tried the registry edit (change the key from 3 to 4) and tried resetting the permissions on usbstor.inf etc. I also found that there is a simple program to fix the problem, but don't want to use that, either. All it does is change the registry value mentioned above. I need the change to be automatic w/o any action from the user. What next?
