You can download these excellent tools and see what running in the background including FileMon:
Download these tools to see the running processes in real-time and you can search them to make sure they are Legit.
"Process Explorer for Windows v10.21"
<http://www.microsoft.com/technet/sysinternals/utilities/processexplorer.msp>
"AutoRuns for Windows v8.61 By Mark Russinovich and Bryce Cogswell"
<http://www.microsoft.com/technet/sysinternals/ProcessesAndThreads/Autoruns.msp>

I'll try those and see if I can find anything. Thanks Naas and Vanguard for your suggestions. I'll keep looking and let you what I find.

I tried both those tools and didn't find anything matching that string when using their search tools.

Hi Nick,

Are you sure you wrote down the correct name, have pick again in the Event Viewer and double click the error message, what info there?.

I didn't write the name, I selected it with the mouse and pasted it. Also, the info in the event viewer message is in my original post – selected, copied and pasted into the newsgroup post.

RE: Question about strange System Event Log Message: soylentgreen

Is it soylent green for a game or is it The soylentgreen service was successfully sent a start control?.

The message is:

"The soylentgreen service was successfully sent a start control."

Additional info' shown by the event viewer is:

Event Type: Information
Event Source: Service Control Manager
Event Category: None
Event ID: 7035
Date: 7/9/2007
Time: 12:04:18 PM
User: xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx/xxxxxxxx
Computer: xxxxxxxxxxx
Description: The soylentgreen service was successfully sent a start control.

(I have xxx'd out the User and Computer info')

The AutoRun is grate tool will show you lots running processes and services, just click on the Tabs on the top.
You receive an error message when you try to open the IPsec MMC policy on a Windows Server 2003-based computer
