Hello,

try it again: Go to the security tab of the Harddisk properties. Click Advanced -> tab "Owner", select your username, select "Replace owner on subcontainers and objects". Then, in the Advanced window -> tab Permissions -> add yourself to the list in the security tab, giving yourself all permissions, and check the box "Replace all existing inheritable...".

Hope this helps.
Greetings,
P. Di Stolfo

I want to know if it is possible to make sure I have total control every folder on my computer. I have recently reinstalled windows and have access denied to some folders from a previous profile.-which does have admin rights. I have started in safe mode to adjust ownership and permissions but i must be doing something wrong. Any suggestions? Thanks
