I notice that you listed www.aumha.org as a source to check on. I have already been there and they have a lot of material, but I could not find anything relating to my Windows Live One Care security software. They only refer to Windows Defender. This is true on many of the sources I have looked at. Isn't Windows Live One Care considered to be a widely used, major, security package???

No, it's not; just the opposite. It's very new, and not particularly trusted by many, myself included.
